EARLY SETTLEMENT

First Settlers, Indians—First White Visitors—First White Settlers—Growth of Settlement.

Prior to the arrival of the Whites, the region about Jonesport was inhabited by the Native Redmen. A mention of this race always quickens the interest of the reader, if he be a student of American History. Few and simple were their laws, yet more generally observed than the numerous enactments of civilized nations, which fill many volumes of statute books.

The early settlers in Maine got along peaceably, at first, with the Redmen; but, later, hostilities occurred. For this the Whites were partly to blame, for the Indian was often deceived and cheated out of his rights, by his better civilized neighbor. The knowledge that their hunting grounds would soon be overrun by the Whites, the influence of the French, who were hostile to the English, and the encouragement of their rebellious Chieftains, were additional causes for this race to enter into a controversy. We know that the Indian fought, according to the methods of his own race, for his home and existence. We are aware that he inflicted punishment upon his intruders, which he thought was justly due. With these thoughts in mind, we cannot blame these people for their part in the, so called, Indian Wars; but must sympathize with them, the weaker race, knowing that it was for the interest of civilization that they should succumb to the stronger power.

The race about Jonesport was, in all probability, a part of the Passamaquoddy Tribe. As far as we know, their acts were ever friendly towards their white neighbors; yet it seems that the early settlers always stood in fear of them, and ever granted their petty requests. Several stories and traditional names, which have come down to the present generation, ever remind us of these people.

The story of the attack on a trading sloop in Head Harbor Island, is one of interest. It seems that a small vessel came to this island just at nightfall and cast anchor. The crew, among whom was that early settler, Manwarren Beal, went ashore and were attacked by a party of Indians. One of their number was killed, and the rest of the party retreated to the vessel. During the night, for the small sloop was forced to remain at anchor because of stormy weather, Mr. Beal and the men who were on watch heard a noise at the stern of the vessel. Mr Beal immediately picked up a fish gaff and glided noiselessly to that place. To his astonishment he observed an Indian trying to destroy the rudder. Without a moments hesitation, Mr. Beal learned over and hooked the fish gaff into the Indian's jaw, and began pulling him aboard as he would a large fish. The Indian, as soon as he could brace his feet against the side of the vessel, took hold of the gaff and unloosed it from his jaw, and fell back into the water and escaped. It seems that the Indians were planning to impair the steering gear, and then set the craft afloat.

Hardwood Island is said to have been the scene of an encounter, in which the whole crew of a trading sloop was massacred by the Redmen. The skeletons of these men were found by early settlers in this town. This incident and the one above occurred presumably before the town was settled. The sloops, mentioned, were from outside towns.

Within the remembrance of some of this town's aged citizens, numerous bands of Indians were prying along our shores. Loon Point, Cross Cove, and many other places were their frequent camping grounds. Cross Cove was so named because of a cross erected there by the Indians. The Reach, then spelled Mooseckey, now Moosabec, is an Indian name given by this race. Perio Point on Beal's Island, received its name from a noted Indian, known as Perio Checkers. On this point is a steep cliff and Perio was, says tradition, the only one of his race who could run up its almost perpendicular sides. In various places, arrow heads, stone ovens, and other reminders of this people have been found.

Thus we have a vague description of these first wandering settlers in this town. We must admire this rough-exterior people, when we think of their endurance, courage, and manly spirit. May the Indian name of the Reach ever remind us of these children of the forest!

The first white person to set foot on Jonesport soil was, in all probability, an early voyager along our coast. Who this person was, and the date of his arrival, we do not know. Prior to 1750, fishermen and other small crafts were continually prying along our shores. This does not give us any definite answer to this question, yet it is such as to convince us, that this region about Jonesport was visited by the Whites at a very early period.

The date of the first permanent settlement by the Whites in Jonesport is uncertain. Settlements of short duration were made at Calais, in 1604; Machias, 1644; and Eastport, in 1672: but no permanent settlement was at Calais, prior to 1763; Machias, 1764; and Eastport, 1780. Jonesport could not have had a permanent settlement previous to the above towns.

The first, or one of the first to settle in the town of Jonesport, was Francis Cummings. He, in 1772, moved from Damariscotta, Maine, and settled on Roque Island. With him was his wife, Mercy Kelley, her father, Aaron Kelley, and his own daughter, Annie. Here they erected a log cabin and passed the winter. In the spring all of the family, except Mr. Kelley who had died during the winter and was buried on the island, moved to Machias. At this place they remained two years, when, in the spring of 1775, Mr. Cummings came to the Reach in Jonesport and settled on the land now owned by his grandson, Charles H. Cummings; who has in his possession two deeds made out to his grandfather by the proprietor of this land, John C. Jones. The dates of the transactions are 1792 and 1794. When

Mr. Cummings arrived in his town, he found here two settlers, Thomas Kelley, and Manwarren Beal. The former, the first permanent settler on the mainland; and the latter, holding this same distinction on Beal's Island. Which of these two settled here first, we do not know.

Thomas Kelley, son of Aaron Kelley who died on Roque Island, came with his wife to this town from Damariscotta, Maine. He settled near the homes of his grandchildren, Frank and Albert Kelley, in that section of the Reach, known as Kelley Point. The date of his arrival may be placed at approximately 1773. To this couple were born five children: three sons, Joseph, Thomas, David; two daughters, Betsey, who married Asa Beal, Abigail, who was united with Nathaniel Kelley. Mr. Kelley's son, Joseph, the first male child born in this region; afterwards, married Olive Beal, daughter to Manwarren Beal, and the first female child born on the Island.

Manwarren Beal, with his wife, Lydia Welch, and children, came to this town from Old York, (Maine) and settled on Beal's Island, on the location known as Barney's Point. Mr. Beal was a man of strong character and large physique. He is said to have sent away and had a chair made for his especial use. An old desk of his, probably one hundred and fifty years old, and verses of his composition are now in the possession of Miss Emma A. Hinkley. To this illustrious couple were born many children, whose descendants are among the foremost enterprising citizens of the town.

Another early settler in this region was John Sawyer, grandfather of two of the town's most enterprising and respected citizens, Daniel J. and Edward Sawyer. Mr. Sawyer and his wife, Mary Jordan, came to this town from Limington, Maine, and erected a homestead near the present site of Edward Sawyer's residence. To this couple were born nine children; three boys, and six girls. Mr. Sawyer's native place was Limington, Maine, and his wife was from Cape Elizabeth.

Thomas Cromwell, an early settler, emigrated to this town with his wife and settled on Loon Point. Their previous residence was at Salem, Massachusetts; and Mr. Cromwell claimed a relationship with that most noted Englishman, Richard Cromwell. In recent years, Colonel Oliver Peabody of Boston secured this point of land; and there erected a beautiful summer home. This cottage has since been destroyed by fire. Mr. Peabody also placed a fitting tombstone, over the burial place of this early family.

Elihu Norton was an early settler in town. He moved here from Addison, Maine, where his father, Seth Norton, had first settled. The date of his arrival was previous to 1790; for at that date he had a settled homestead in West Jonesport a little to the westward of the present site of Augustus Hopkins' residence. Mr. Hopkins has in his possession several choice articles which were the property of this old settler. Elihu Norton is said to have been very friendly with the Indians, and was a noted moose hunter. He had several moose snares, at a creek on the Indian River road now known as Snare Creek.

John Buffitt was the first settler in town to receive a grant of land from the proprietor of this section, John C.

Jones. His lot and residence was at West Jonesport, where he arrived prior to 1792; for that early settler, Francis Cummings, had his grant made out at that date, and, in this document, mention is made of Mr. Buffitt's land lying to the westward. This early settler was of a roving disposition, not much is known about him.

On that point of land known as Old House Point near the present site of Charles Mansfield's fish plant at the lower village, there once lived an old settler, Thomas Hicks. Some claim he also had a residence on Beal's Island, near a cove, known as Hicks' Cove. Many interesting stories are told of his wife, who, it is said, had a supernatural power; and was termed by the settlers, a witch. Nothing definite is known about this family. They were here, no doubt, at a very early date.

That body of water within the limits of the town known as Mason's Bay, seems to have received it's name from an early settler, who lived on Mason's or Ballast Island. French House Island is said to have been settled at a very early date by a Frenchman. Some say that these two sites were the first settled places in town. So little is known of them, that it is impossible to give any further explanation on the matter.

The land through this section was granted to John C. Jones and others by the Massachusetts Commonwealth, Jan. 1, 1789. Mr. Jones is said to have received this gift in payment for a sloop of his, which was lost in the siege of the British at Castine. If so, he was well paid; for the grant comprised the districts of Bucks Harbor and Little River

(The former now the property of Machiasport, the latter of Machias) Jonesboro, Jonesport, and Roque Bluffs, a total of 48,160 acres. This great tract of land, plantation number twenty-two, was incorporated as a township, March 4, 1809, and was the one hundred and seventy-sixth town in the Province of Maine to be chartered. Jonesport was set off about twenty-three years later, or February 3rd, 1832; and Roque Bluffs or "Englishman's River" as it was called, was set off March 12, 1891. Over this tract of land, Mr. Jones, who was the principal proprietor, appointed as sub-agents: Gustvuas Fellows, John Holway, and Stephen Jones. These men sold land titles to the pioneers, and many deeds now in existence bear their signatures.

It is an acknowledged fact, that as soon as one member of a family settled in town, his near kindred were wont to follow. This is true of the Beals, Cummings, Sawyers and Nortons, and accounts for the large number of families now in town bearing these honored names. The following are Surnames of early settlers in town, not heretofore given. Of these, more mention will be made later:—Dunham, Dobbins, Wallace, Alley, MacDonald, Dickey, Oliver, Hinkley, Smith, Donovan, Hopkins, Farnsworth, Lamson, Rogers, Hutchinson, Church, Drisko, McKenzie.

The town increased in numbers very slowly, at first. The sparsely settled regions, in this section of Washington County, were not very attractive to the early home seekers. Not until more recent years has the town given promise of great industrial prosperity. At an early date the business section of the town was at Indian River. At that place was a large saw mill, ship yard, and the people of this section were obliged to go there for their mail. At that date, 1850, very few would have predicted that the present village of Jonesport, would, in the future, be the larger settlement. The rapid strides that the town has made is worthy of attention. In 1840, eight years after the town's incorporation, we have the following settlers here.

On Beal's Island were:—Asa Beal, Ami Beal, Thomas Beal, William Dobbins, Thomas Wallace, Asa Beal and Edward Beal. The residences of Ami Beal, Thomas Beal, and William Dobbins are still standing and occupied by families.

On Great Wass Island, at Alley's Bay, there was one settler, John Alley.

On the "Reach" road there lived: Elihu Norton, Phineas Norton, Abraham Norton, Andrew McDonald, Darius Dickey, Freeman Beal, Jeremiah B. Norton, Samuel Cummings, Frank Cummings, Evans Sawyer, John Sawyer, Daniel Sawyer, Thomas Oliver, Nehemiah Sawyer, Thomas Kelley, David Kelley, Joseph Kelley and Ephraim Kelley. Of their homesteads, the ones occupied by Abraham Norton, Phineas Norton, Darius Dickey and Ephraim Kelley, are still standing. Phineas Norton's residence is, without doubt, the oldest house now standing in town.

Elias Hinkley, Demick Cummings, Nathaniel Church, William Smith, Jerry Drisko, Zimri Drisko, Edmund Drisko, and Ellis McKenzie, were then living on the Indian River road.

On the Jonesboro, or Mason's Bay road, were Samuel N. Kelley, James Smith, Levi Smith, Jeremiah Donovan, Henry Farnsworth, Isaac Farnsworth, David Farnsworth, Enoch Farnsworth, Prince Rogers, Daniel Rogers, Zelas Smith, Frank Smith, Otis Smith, John Hutchinson, and John White.

These names give one an idea of the number of inhabitants in town at the date mentioned; as the list contains the heads of all the families here.

The many needed institutions, such as churches, school houses, mercantile stores, and highways, came even slower than the people. It is interesting to note their slow but gradual advancement.

The early accommodations for travel that were present for the people at this date, were not very enticing. The highways were but trodden paths, although a pretense had been made to construct passable roads. These were only safe in the winter, when the swamps were frozen. To journey to other parts of the state from the town was a seemingly ponderous task. The journey must be made practically all the distance on foot. The first steamboat, The Rockland, did not come here till 1853, and the railroad, at a much more recent date. Horses were few in number, in fact, it was a rare treat to see one of these fleet footed quadrupeds. The first horse to pass through the town was the one owned by Ephriam Hinkley, the tax collector from Jonesboro Village. The first person in town to own a horse was Abraham Norton. Soon Darius Dickey, Edward Mansfield and Elias Hinkley, each possessed one of these domestic animals, probably in the above order. The early traveler found lodging in some private family. The first public tavern in town was kept in the present Moosabec House, by its owner and builder, Edward A. Mansfield. The second hotel was built in 1860, by William Rumery, and stood nearly opposite the Bay View House, at West Jonesport. This building was destroyed by fire in 1872. The present Bay View Hotel was erected in 1879, by E. L. Plummer of Addison.

The first persons to keep a mercantile store in town were, Clement Hopkins and Elias Hinkley. Mr. Hopkins came to this town in 1826; and, not long after, he and Mr. Hinkley erected a building near the present steamboat wharf, and then went into trade. In 1858 these same two persons built the present steamboat landing. When these two men dissolved partnership, after carrying on the store business for a few years, then Mr. Hopkins went into trade for himself at Hopkins Point. This same store building is now standing and used by Augustus Hopkins as a storehouse. This business of Mr. Hopkins was carried on at this place as early as 1840. Deacon Thomas Lamson was also an early merchant in the same building. Darius Dickey was another early trader at West Jonesport, and his store was in the basement of the house now owned by William P. J. Cummings, and occupied by himself and Augustus Dobbins. This place is known as the Dickey Homestead. Mr. Dickey came here from Bucksport, Maine, one fall, in a vessel loaded with provisions. These goods he sold out to the people while stationed at Cross Cove. The next year he established himself in the above store. Edward A. Mansfield and Joshua Walker were early merchants at the Lower Village. Mr. Mansfield was in trade as early as 1845, and the building which he occupied is now near its former site, in the vicinity of the present store of W. F. Mansfield and B. B. Mansfield, and is used as a store and ice house. Mr. Walker's place of business stood near the present store of D. J. Sawyer. He was in trade about the same time as Mr. Mansfield. He afterwards let his building to two men, Edgerton and Page, of Danvers, Massachusetts, who occupied the same for a couple of years. In 1848, the town's present estimable and enterprising citizen, D. J. Sawyer, secured Mr. Walker's old store and began the business which he has carried on so successfully.

At an early date the nearest Post Office was at Columbia Falls, a distance of twelve miles. From here the mail, which came once a week from Bangor, was taken and left for the people at a common place. The mail at West Jonesport was often left at Darius Dickey's store, and that at the Lower Village, at E. A. Mansfield's building. Probably not much mail was sent, for no newspapers came here, and the exorbitant postage rates on letters prevented any once-a-week correspondence. A little later a Post Office was established at Indian River. The first Postmaster in town was Edward A. Mansfield, and his office was in his store. A little later Charles F. Barker occupied this same position, and his office was in this same building. Mr. Barker was followed in order by E. M. Sawyer, Mrs. E. R. Peasley, B. F. Carver, and D. D. Kelley. At West Jonesport J. B. Clark was the first to hold this governmental position. His office was in the house now occupied by Judson Carver. Mr. S. B. Cummings, the present postmaster, followed Mr. Clark. Mr.

Cummings first occupied his residence for its use, until the office was moved to its present location. The first office on Beal's Island was officiated over by its present postmaster, J. A. Beal.

The nearest physician, prior to 1869, was Dr. Alpheus Chandler, of Columbia Falls, and his son, Charles, at Addison Point. The first settled physician in town is the town's present successful practitioner, Dr. Edgar MacNichol, who began his work here at the above date. Those who have followed are: Dr. Leeman, Dr. Walling, Dr. Smith, Dr. Illes, Dr. Adams and Dr. Kendall.

With these, what we, of today, term adverse conditions, the early settlers were contented and happy. The secret of it all was, that they made the most of their meager privileges. Hardly an evening passed when a family did not either receive company or visit their neighbor. A little of this old fashioned freedom would not harm the present generation. Many stories are told of the feats of endurance of these men and women of seemingly iron constitutions, until we are forced to believe that the world is growing weaker and wiser.

From 1850 to the present time, the following statistics give one an idea of the rapid stride that the town has made in population and wealth.

In 1850 the town's population numbered 826; in 1860, 1148; in 1870, 1305; in 1880, 1563; in 1890, 1917; in 1900, 2124; in 1905, (est) 2500. In 1860 the total estate valuation was $105,753; in 1870, $156,388; in 1880, $192,984; in 1890, $342,318; in 1900, $448,872; in 1905, $461,807.

Thus the town has increased in numbers, from 826 in 1850, to 2,500 in 1905; and in valuation of property, from $105,-753 in 1860, to $461,807 in 1905.

The future of Washington County, with her bountiful natural resources, never looked more promising than today. The attention of capitalists and manufacturers throughout the county is being turned toward the fuller development of her home products and resources. Jonesport, well situated on the seacoast, cannot fail in the future to receive with her neighboring towns, her full share of this attention and its inevitable influence for development and prosperity.

INCORPORATION

Jonesport, previous to its incorporation, was a part of the town of Jonesboro, which was granted a charter January 1, 1789. Previous to this, it was known as Plantation Number twenty-two. The present town of Jonesport was incorporated as a town by Act of the Legislature, February 3, 1832.

The three potent reasons that brought about this separation were: 1st, the increase in population and wealth in the southern section of the town; 2nd, the distance that separated them from Jonesboro Village; and 3d, probably, a small feeling of jealousy between the two sections. The town meetings were held at Jonesboro Village, a distance of twelve miles, which made it difficult for those living on the "Reach" to attend, especially when the mud was deep. With a majority of voters from their section of the town, the Jonesboro faction had a tendency to elect the "larger half" of town officers from their part of the town. It is said, that at one annual town meeting, a rainy day, with the mud knee deep, the "Reach" section of voters marched to the meeting in full force, and elected most of the town officials from their part of the town, since the Jonesboro faction did not attend not expecting them on such a day. The idea of separation seemed favorable to both parties. To draw up these conditions of separation, the town chose P. Whitney from Jonesboro, and Clement Hopkins and Nathaniel Sawyer from the "Reach." In these articles, the town of Jonesport agreed to hold in their possession all the islands. Roque Island was set off to this town that Jonesboro might be rid of John Shorey, one of its settlers who greatly annoyed the people in town meetings, as he differed from the majority in politics, and insisted upon giving his opinion. On several occasions, the town has had to fight for this island in order to keep it in her possession.

At the first town meeting, which was held in the old school house on Indian River road, $150 was raised for schools, and $150 for the support of poor and other expenses. Not a large sum when we think of this same town's expenditures in 1904, which were $13,776.27. At this same meeting, John Shorey was elected town treasurer and Phineas Kelley collector of taxes. For many succeeding years, the voters met in the school house at Sawyer's Cove.

It was often termed in the records, "Town House," because the town appropriated $100 for its erection, on condition that they should use it for town purposes. The more recent town meetings have met in Mansfield's or Smith's Opera House.

It is an interesting fact, that Darius Kelley was the first male child born in the town of Jonesport, and Martha A (Cummings) Dunham the first girl with the same honor. The first marriage was between Zimri Drisko and Miss Roxie Norton.

CHURCH HISTORY.

The pioneers of Jonesport were a God fearing people. In no case were they negligent in providing for the worship of the Divine. They did not have costly edifices in which to assemble, nor fine roads in which to travel, yet they always found a place in which to worship, and a way to get there at an allotted time. Their example is worthy of our attention.

The early meetings in town were first held in private dwelling houses. Here the people assembled, and one of their number or some travelling clergyman assumed the leadership of the gathering. These early ministers of the Gospel endured many trying hardships. Their reward in worldly goods was but a pittance. The present generation owes much to these self-sacrificing men. Later, the people met in the school-houses at Indian River, Sawyer's Cove and the Vestry at West Jonesport. The first building erected for church purposes, was the Union Church at the Lower

Village which was begun in 1860 and completed the following year. For the first few years, this building was occupied by the Baptist and Universalist Societies; but during the more recent years, by Congregational and Latter-Day Saints.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

The Union Congregational Church of Jonesport was organized September 11, 1877. Previous to this, the people had Congregational preaching, for this was a branch of the same denomination at Machias. The Rev. D. S. Holbrook, Rev. Marshall R. Peck, Rev. Lemuel Hastings and Rev. A. F. Newton had labored with the people in the intervening years between 1873 and 1877. The meetings were held in the Union Church, alternately, with the Latter Day Saints, and ever since, until the erection in 1886 of their present beautiful building, which was a gift of the Hon. D. J. Sawyer and wife. The cost of this church was approximately $9000. It was dedicated, June 7, 1887.

In 1877 a noted evangelist from New York, Rev. John Vassar, visited Jonesport. He, and the people's pastor, Rev. S. Thurston, immediately began an earnest work in the church. The result was the organization, mentioned above, at which time, forty-two became members. On May 20, of this same year, a Council was called to ordain and install the first pastor, Rev. G. S. Chapin. Mr. Chapin remained with the people until the last of March, 1881.

During the summer of 1881, O. G. McIntire, a Theological student, labored with the church, and was followed in 1882 and 1883 by transient supplies, during which time the Ladies' Union Congregational Parsonage Society was organized.

In 1884 Rev. E. S. Walbridge was ordained pastor of the Society, and remained with the people for about six years. During his stay the present church and Parsonage was built. Mr. Walbridge was succeeded by the following clergymen in their order: Rev. C. S. Young, Rev. E. S. Ireland, Rev. S. L. Mitchell, Rev. Frederick Newport, and Rev. Thomas B. Hatt.

At the present time this denomination is in a flourishing condition with a membership of 121. The Sunday School connected with the church is a large one, and is doing an earnest work.

CHURCH OF LATTER DAY SAINTS.

It was during the year 1869, that Elder T. W. Smith, of New Jersey, came to Jonesport, representing the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints; but did not remain a sufficient period to effect an organization. The following year, Elder Josiah Ells, of Pennsylvania visited the people as a Missionary, and during his short stay baptized five people. He was succeeded, later on, by other missionaries, who came and labored until fourteen persons were converted to the faith.

In 1873 Elder Joseph Lakeman, of Grand Meanan, New Brunswick, came here and organized a Branch of the Church. Under his ardent and zealous labors many souls were united with the Society. Mr. Lakeman was followed by Elder B. K. Rogers who did efficient and earnest work. Mr. Rogers' labors with this organization ceased by his death in 1879, when Mr. J. S. Walker, who was Priest of the Branch, was chosen to preside, and was soon after ordained an Elder. Mr. Walker served faithfully in this position until his impaired health forced him to give up the work. Younger men have been called to preside, namely: L. A. Woodward, Jonesport; C. H. Rich, Boston, and W. E. LaRue, Davenport, Iowa.

Of the many missionaries who have served this church we would mention the following: W. H. Kelley, Elijah Banta, I. M. Smith, F. M. Sheahy, U. W. Greene, T. C. Kelley, J. C. Foss, W. F. Gowell and Joseph Luff.

A great auxiliary to the Church is the Sunday School which was organized in 1886. The School then enrolled but eighteen members, while at the present time the number reaches sixty. A hall was rented for this body, where they met for two years. The first Superintendent was Mrs. E. M. Walker, who has officiated in this capacity ever since.

At the present time this organization gives promise of a very strong society. Its membership now numbers one-hundred and fifty, and is increasing each year. Meetings are held in the Union Church at the Lower Village, and in the vestry at West Jonesport.

UNION CHURCH SOCIETY, WEST JONESPORT.

Religious meetings have been held at the West Jonesport vestry by the Congregationalists and Latter Day Saints for many years. The need of a more fitting place of assembly was felt for a long time, but no decisive action was taken to secure such a building till July 21st, 1902, when the ladies, in that section of the village, met at the vestry and organized a Union Church Society. Its avowed object was and is the erection of a Union Church building, open to all denominations. At this first meeting the total enrollment of members numbered seventy. In the two years that followed, this Society raised a total of $350.

On February 5th, 1904, this society was organized, the men coming forward to do active work. A committee was appointed to select a suitable site for a church building, and to purchase the same. This committee secured a lot adjoining the cemetery at West Jonesport, at a cost of $510. A part of this site has been used to enlarge the burial grounds, and the burial lots thus made are sold to the public. This society has raised approximately $1,000 since its organization.

The present officers are: W. L. Noyes, president; U. C. Norton, vice-president; Mrs. W. E. Sheafe, 2nd vice-president and president of Ladies' Auxiliary; Mrs. S. J. Leighton, vice-president of Ladies' Auxiliary; Mary A. Cummings, secretary; Alice M. Hinkley, treasurer.

REFORMED BAPTIST CHURCH

The Reformed Baptist Church of Beal's Island is the outcome of the labor of Rev. C. S. Hilyard, of Jonesport, who began his first work there, on Sunday evening, September 9, 1895, at which time he preached his first sermon. In the revival that started from his work during the following months, over ninety persons were converted.

In October, 1895, Mr. Hilyard organized this society, with forty-three members, which number has increased until seventy-six are now enrolled. This church was made possible by the many new converts, who came forward and sought the new faith.

These first religious meetings were held in the school houses. In the winter of 1895, the society began preparations to construct a suitable structure for their use. On October 14, the following year, the first sod was turned for this new building by the society's pastor, Rev. C. S. Hilyard. This church was soon completed, and dedicated on the 6th of February, 1897. The dedicatory sermon being given by Rev. Z. B. Grass, of Lubec.

Rev. A. L. Buber is the present pastor of this church. Previous to his coming, the society received preaching from missionary supplies and Rev. Mr. Hilyard, its organizer, who has ever administered to the people's wants. This organization is now making preparations to erect a suitable pastor's home. A thriving Sunday school is connected with the church. The superintendent is Stephen Woodward.

CHRISTIAN SECOND ADVENT CHURCH

The Christian Second Advent Church of Beal's Island was organized June 26, 1881, by Elder N. Smith, of Old Town, assisted by Elder McKenzie, of Indian River. Mr. Smith was the church's first pastor, and worked with them till his death. Elder Hinkley and others occasionally preached to the people. This society numbered 99 members.

On the 10th of September, 1897, this society was reorganized by Rev. Robert F. Emerson, of East Rochester, New Hampshire. At this occasion, fifty-four persons joined the new organization, and this number has now reached seventy.

In 1903, Elder Buck, of Woodstock, New Brunswick, officiated as pastor of these people, and it was during his pastorate that a church edifice was started. This was completed the following year, at a cost of about $1,200, and dedicated in the fall. Rev. Mr. Emerson gave the dedicatory sermon.

The present pastor is Elder Brewster, under whose guidance the church is progressing. A large Sunday school is connected as an auxiliary to the church.

CHURCH OF LATTER DAY SAINTS, BEAL'S ISLAND

The reorganized church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, of Beal's Island, is a part of this same branch, organized in 1873 at Jonesport village. For the past eight years the missionaries on the main land visited these people and administered the Gospel. Elder John C. Foss was one of the first to preach to this denomination on the island.

About 1898, the present flourishing Sunday school was organized, and is a credit to this church. Mr. Fred G. Beal is its superintendent, and Mrs. Susie A. Beal the assistant.

The present neat and comfortable house of worship was begun but a short time ago, and is now nearly completed. Its cost will be approximately $900. Furnishings of modern style are being installed. The dedication of the building will take place as soon as everything is ready.

This church on Beal's Island numbers about forty souls and weekly meetings are carried on at all times during the year. The society is steadily growing and gives promise of a strong organization.

MILITARY MATTERS

The town of Jonesport is justly entitled to the high esteem of the State and the Nation for her loyal support of the Government in military matters. Whenever the call to arms has been sounded, her citizens have ever responded to its appeal. True and loyal has she ever stood for our national prestige.

REVOLUTIONARY WAR

In this struggle for independence, the town of Jonesport could not have taken a very active part, for she was too few in numbers, yet there were, doubtless, a few who went to the aid of Machias, when she was in danger of capture by the British. We know that town received loyal support from her neighbors in order to defend herself so successfully through this war.

It was during these eight years of unceasing conflict that the home of Manwarren Beal on Beal's Island, was robbed by an English privateer. The account goes, that at one time, when Mr. Beal was very sick in bed with a slow fever, a vessel, bearing an American flag appeared off the island. She immediately pointed her bow towards the shore and came to anchor in Barney's Cove. Then the crew pulled down the Stars and Stripes, and flung to the breeze the Union Jack. The men soon came to the home of Mr. Beal and demanded what money there was in the house, and were told by Sally, the daughter, that there was none. They replied, that unless it was handed over to them, they would blow the house to atoms. Failing in this persistent demand, they began to search for money, and finally, to plunder the house; for at this time the home was well-stocked with provisions for the winter, Mr. Beal having just returned from a trip for the winter's supplies. The crew of the privateer seized everything they could carry away, even to the clothes on the beds; and that which they were unable to take with them, they destroyed. In this manner a hogshead of molasses was broken in and its contents spilled on the floor, and several of the domestic animals were killed. Having thus deprived the family of all means of support, the English plunderers left the house. The daughter, Sally, as she stood in the door crying, because of the destitute condition they were left in, and wiping her eyes with a homespun apron, was approached by one of the English officers, and presented with a new "ban danner" silk handkerchief. The English privateer soon departed, probably to commit a similar act on some other unprotected homestead.

WAR OF 1812.

In this second conflict with Great Britian, for national freedom from oppression, English war vessels were continually prying along the coast of Maine in pursuit of plunder. The region along whose shores they journeyed was the scene of many thrilling adventures.

It was on March 21st, 1814, that the British privateer, Vim, chased an American revenue cutter, commanded by Captain Elliott of Machias, into the harbor of Jonesport. The English war vessel fired several shots at the revenue cutter as she came in pursuit, and Captain Elliott, in order to avoid all hands being captured, ran the vessel aground in Sawyer's Cove. The British immediately launched a barge and, with a small crew, proceeded to take their supposed easily captured prize, for its crew had fled to the woods. In the meantime the citizens on shore, among whom were Freeman Beal, Jerry Norton, Andrew MacDonald, John Sawyer, Francis Cummings, Eben Sawyer, Daniel Sawyer, and William Dobbins, hearing the firing, came to the scene of action with their flint lock muskets and hid behind a ledge of rock overlooking the Cove. When the English barge was within firing range, a volley was given and one of the oncoming party was killed, and another, a mulatto, was wounded. The barge was finally forced to surrender, and the wounded man was carried to the home of Nehemiah Kelley. Mrs. Kelley, when she returned to her home that night, for she had fled to the woods for safety, was somewhat frightened to find them in her house. The English crew had destroyed several of her linen sheets in trying to stop the flow of blood from their wounded comrade. For this damage the men made due amends to Mrs. Kelley. The English war vessels continued to fire shots ashore, and agreed to desist and leave the harbor on condition that their crew from the barge be released. This was cheerfully granted and the vessel sailed away.

WAR OF THE REBELLION.

In this war for national unity the town of Jonesport played a most prominent part. Ever ready was she to raise money for expenditures, and to send her sons to the front. Her record in both is of the best. Too much praise cannot be given to those true and loyal men who left their homes and marched to the front in that bloody struggle of 1861.

At the opening and throughout those four years of conflict, rally meetings were continually held in our town. Whenever a call was made upon the town for men, the selectmen held a meeting of the citizens, and there secured the names of those volunteering to enlist. As an inducement, the town paid $100, and finally, $200, to the ones thus secured. Volunteers and drafted men were paid a like sum, but it is an honorary fact that very few men were drafted. Approximately 100 men enlisted from this town.

With due reverence, we herewith submit the names of Civil War veterans now living in the town of Jonesport: Robert Anderson, B. B. Bickford, W. W. Clark, Daniel Dobbins, David Davis, William H. Faulkingham, Otis Faulkingham, John Faulkingham, Henry Farnsworth, Aaron Kelley, Henry Peasley, George Peasley, Henry Smith, Fred M. Smith, Benjamin Smith, Isaac Worden.

EDUCATIONAL ITEMS

The school history of the town of Jonesport covers a long and interesting period. As a whole, her citizens are proud of the record that is handed down. The town's representatives who have entered various phases of work in outside fields, speak well for their home training.

In the early beginning of our town, school houses were not provided. Each parent was supposed to have a room where the teacher would come and instruct his children and others who met there. Usually some family, which had an unusually large room, offered their hospitality for this purpose. This school instruction was carried on by the "board around" system, when the instructor received very low wages, probably paid in boards and shingles, and was obliged to journey from one house to another for lodging. The length of time that he remained in a family depended on the number of school children in that house, and, perhaps to his own discomfort, the longer stay was made where there was the most children. In the remembrance of some of the town's aged citizens the above forms were carried on. Schools were kept in the houses, and, at one time, in an old loft in what was then the upper apartment of Joshua Walker's store.

The first school building erected in town was on the Indian River road, near the site of Obed Lamson's residence. This house was afterwards used for storage purposes. The second building for school purposes stood at Sawyer's Cove, near the site of James Bryant's home. This was built by the town and district. The town gave $100 for its erection, providing that it should be used for town meetings. The Union Vestry at West Jonesport was the third school building erected in town. This was done in 1848 by Abraham McKenzie, who received $400 for his work.

The scholars in these schools had books, such as they were, if they were able to purchase them. Hon. D. J. Sawyer informs the writer that at one time, when on the school committee, he visited one of the island schools, and there found a pupil with only a farmer's almanac from which to study. Thanks to the present "Free Book System," the pupil, rich or poor, is supplied alike. Our town was one of the first in this section of Maine to adopt this much needed system. Great credit is due to the persistent labors of Mrs. D. J. Sawyer, who was largely instrumental in bringing this about. The sad death of this beloved woman and friend, which occurred on July 2d, 1902, took away the town's most ardent educational promoter. Mention should also be made of her husband, Hon. D. J. Sawyer, who has worked unceasingly in the interests of the schools in town.

From this small beginning our town has its present schools, and justly proud and thankful ought she to be for the marked advancement that has been made. Not many towns of her size can boast of a better regulated system, or more tasty school buildings. A good idea of their present condition may be gathered from the following:

The town of Jonesport is divided into ten school districts, with a total of 16 common schools of lower grade, and one high school. The number of scholars in town drawing school money is 906. Each of these schools are graded, thanks to the earnest and successful labors of the town's present superintendent, Mrs. B. B. Mansfield, supported in every move by the committee, W. L. Noyes, Rev. T. B. Hatt and Dr. H. A. Mansfield. For these schools competent instructors are secured. Within the last two years many improvements have been made on the school buildings. Most of them are now supplied with a school bell and flag.

Two modern Grammar school buildings, the Lincoln, at West Jonesport, and the Washington at the Lower Village, have been lately erected at a cost of about $10,000. The town is to erect during the summer a one-story school house at Head Harbor, and a two story structure at Alley's Bay.

Prior to 1894 there was no free High School in town. For a long time the citizens had felt the need of such an institution, for their children who wished to go to college were compelled to leave the town to fit themselves for entrance. It was in the spring of 1893 that the first potent move was made to establish such an advanced school of learning. At that annual town meeting an article was put in the warrant asking that a Free High School be established, and that the town, in conjunction with the Masonic Lodge, erect a building for its use. Each was to pay one-half of the cost of construction. The town was to occupy the first floor, and furnish it at her own expense, and the Masons were to use the upper apartment, which they should furnish. This article was accepted, and $1,500 was appropriated for the erection of the building.

In the fall of 1894, the building having been completed, the first term of High School opened, with Mr. Horsman, a graduate of Bowdoin College, at its head. The next year Harry Wilbur, of the same college, assumed the principalship, and remained with this institution several years. The first graduation occurred in the spring of 1896, when eight students received diplomas. Then in one year the school had three teachers, Clarence Parks, Lincoln Roys and Harry Wilbur. The next principal was J. D. Murphy, a graduate of Williams College. Mr. Murphy was the first to have an assistant in the school, Miss Annie S. Morrison, a graduate of Smith College, occupying that position. In 1904 the present principal, Henry G. Clement of Gorham, Maine, a graduate of Bowdoin College, assumed charge of this school. His assistant is Miss Betsey A. Nickels of Cherryfield, a Colby College graduate. Both of these instructors have proved themselves efficient in their positions. The school has an attendance of about fifty students. College Preparatory and English courses are instituted in the school, from which a student is granted a diploma, having finished the course of study with a rank of 75 or more, on a scale of 100.

This institution, although in its infancy, gives promise of a very useful career. The town is doing everything possible to make it one of the best of its class.

INDUSTRIAL ACCOUNT

The town of Jonesport, owing to its situation, has always been interested in fishing, manufacturing and shipping industries. For the first few years, lumbering and fishing were the principal branches of industry, but later, ship-building and manufacturing came to the front. These industries alone have made the town one of Maine's busy seaports of today.

The early settlers in this section of Maine, found the land covered with dense forests of spruce and pine, toward the manufacture of which their minds naturally turned. At an early date saw mills were built in various sections of the town, at Indian River, Hay Creek, Roque Island and Beal's Island. The mill at Indian River was the largest in these parts, and was in operation for many years. John Shorey operated the one on Roque Island; the Beales ran the mill on Beal's Island, at Mill Creek; and Clement Hopkins and Elias Hinkley owned the plant at Hay Creek. These, and a few others, comprised the town's manufacturing industries at an early date.

The lumber then manufactured was shipped in vessels to Massachusetts and other markets, which created a demand for vessels. These must be built. In this way, the natural course of events brought about extensive ship-building yards and firms in Jonesport.

The first craft of any size to be constructed here, was built on Roque Island, by John Shorey. This vessel was a bark, and was owned by a Portland firm.

Reuben Lamson built the next two vessels on Spruce Island. The first one, on which Jeremiah Drisko was master workman, was named the Alexander Milliken; the second, the R. and S. Lamson, had as its master builder, A. L. Norton.

Edward A. Mansfield constructed two vessels in his yard at the Lower Village. Their names were: Northern Light and Melissa Anne.

The most extensive ship-builder and owner in town, was the Hon. D. J. Sawyer. Mr. Sawyer built his first two vessels in the Mansfield yard, but, later, began operations in his own yard. Here many vessels were constructed. The last craft was completed in 1890, and was a three-masted vessel, the largest ever built in these parts.

Another ship-builder was Eldridge Watts, who constructed two vessels. The first, the Stephen J. Watts, was built in 1871, in Mansfield's ship yard; the other, the Ada Barker, was constructed a little later at Cross Cove.

From the very first, the people of Jonesport have obtained their livelihood from the sea. A large proportion of the town's men are either engaged in fishing industries, or are following the sea in coasting vessels. This town can proudly boast of as many skilled craftsmen, if not more, than any other place of its size along the coast. The number of fishermen engaged in the catching of lobsters and herring exceeds two hundred. Over fifty weirs are in use for catching the latter. The sardine canning factories erected in town, have brought the herring industry to the front during recent years.

In 1881, George Capen, of Eastport, erected the sardine plant, known as the Middle factory, and of late secured by the Sea Coast Canning Company. Four years later, Mr. Capen sold out to Wolfe and Reesing of New York. The next owner was the Jonesport Packing Company, of which Fred M. Smith, George W. Smith and Newell Rumery were members. From this company the present owners bought the plant in 1895, and operated it for one year. This factory is not in operation at the present time.

About the same time that Capen erected his plant, Judson Young and Judson Stimpson, of Eastport, came here and built a similar factory on Old House Point, near the site of Charles Mansfield's fishing stand. The next year, 1882, Young sold out to his brother, James. Mr. Parker, of Eastport, finally bought out the share owned by James Young, and the firm then assumed the name of Stimpson & Parker. This sardine factory was in operation a few years, but was finally destroyed by fire.

William Underwood Company, manufacturers of canned goods, have a large plant situated at West Jonesport. The present factory may be termed the outgrowth of the fishing plant established in 1859 on the same site, by Rumery & Burnham of Portland. These two men went into the lobster business, their buildings consisting of two wooden factories, one store and a boarding house.

In 1866 the firm of William Underwood and Company bought the plant and handled lobsters and clams, the former in summer, the latter in winter. Three years later, 1869, this factory was totally destroyed by fire, and the firm immediately began to rebuild, under the supervision of its general manager, George W. Smith. The buildings of this second factory are now used as a tenement house and storage building. It was erected for the purpose of handling sardines, and this firm was the first to enter into this business west of Eastport. This second plant, when in operation, employed about 150 hands. In 1895, at the death of W. J. Underwood, the company was changed to the present corporation.

In 1899 the present firm, whose members are the Underwood brothers, H. O., W. L. and Loring of Belmont, Massachusetts, began the erection of the present sardine plant, which may be termed the most modern structure of this kind in the world. This factory was completed in 1900, under the supervision of its superintendent, Mr. Charles Hinkley. That same fall this concern began the packing of clams. It is useless to try to describe in detail this modern structure in the space allowed. The Underwood corporation surely spared no expense to give the town of Jonesport a manufacturing plant of which she may justly be proud. The foundation alone of this brick structure required 4,100 tons of split stone, and 1,000 barrels of cement and lime. The building is constructed of brick, and is two stories in height. The inside of the same is plastered with the best German cement, which is coated with magnite, making a very smooth and white surface. This factory is equipped with all of the latest, modern, improved machinery for its operation. The basement contains a reservoir with a capacity of 40,000 gallons of water for steaming purposes. This is the only factory in the world that is equipped with a fish cutting machine, the invention of one of the town's citizens, Arthur R. Rogers. The firm's buildings are lighted by electricity from their own electric plant. This factory is devoted especially to the canning of clams and sardines. The capacity of the plant is about 1,000 cases per day, and approximately 250 hands are employed. The local management is under the supervision of Mr. Charles Hinkley, assisted by his brothers, Edgar E and Lewis W. Hinkley. This Underwood corporation has a large, modern sardine plant under construction at Bass Harbor.

The Sea Coast Canning Company of New York is another firm operating a large sardine manufacturing plant at Jonesport. This business was established some five years since, by Messrs G. F & I. J. Mansfield, who successfully carried on this business till 1904, when the factory was leased to the above syndicate for a period of four years. The present officers are George F. Mansfield, President; W. F. Mansfield, Treasurer and Clerk; and D. C. Mitchell, General Manager.

This plant comprises a two and one-half story factory building, 127x35, a power house, a convenient office building and wharf. These buildings are lighted by electricity from the company's electric plant, and the entire plant is equipped with modern machinery for its operation. Later additions are the engine room, 25x35; dry house, 28x50 and bath room 17x18. An addition of 40x100 has been lately built on the wharf. An 125 horse power boiler, and 50 horse power engine are in use. About 350 tons of coal are consumed annually. This factory is devoted entirely to the handling of sardines, of which the plant's capacity is about 700 cases per day. This furnishes employment to approximately 200 hands.

This concern also operates a pickling and smoked fish plant, situated near that of the packing company. This business was first established some eight years ago. The buildings consist of two twelve bay smoke houses, with a capacity of 25,000 boxes; a two story pickling building, 28x75, with a capacity of 100 hogsheads; together with a boxing shed, 20x30, in which the packing cases are put together. Falmer Lakeman is foreman of this apartment.

The Sea Coast Company and Mr. Geo. F. Mansfield have lately secured the fish stands on French House Island, which were formerly the property of H. E. Beal. The capacity of this plant is about 70,000 boxes. The herring are taken from these smoke houses, carried to Eastport, and there sealed in tin cans, the size of a quarter oil can. This stamp of goods have an excellent market. D. W. Lakeman is foreman.

The following persons are operators of fishing plants in town:

D. S. Andrews and E. B. Sawyer own and operate a pickled and smoked fish plant on Head Harbor Island. They began this business at this place in 1901, and have enlarged their buildings at different times. The plant comprises one main building, two and a half stories high, 35x70;

a pickling house, 25x35, and three large smoke houses. The capacity of the smoked buildings is about 125,000 boxes annually, and that of the pickled apartment 80 hogsheads at one time.

R. B. Stevens carries on a picked and smoked fish plant at Cross Cove. The buildings comprise a two story modern structure, formerly used by the firm of Stevens and Drisko for the packing of sardines, and a twenty-two bay smoke house. The capacity of the plant is about 70,000 boxes annually.

Charles H. Mansfield is one of the town's fish packers, and has a smoked fish and pickled plant on Old House Point. This business was started by him some eight years ago. The buildings consist of two large, modern smoke houses, and two buildings for tanks. The capacity of the former is about 60,000 boxes. Mr. Mansfield has lately erected a large fish stand near his other buildings.

Otis B. Faulkingham, now owns and operates a pickled and smoked fish plant, situated near his residence at West Jonesport. This business, which was established by Mr. Seth Nickerson was secured some four years since by Mr. Faulkingham. The buildings comprise a smoked fish house and salt building. The capacity of this plant is about 20,000 boxes.

Charles L. Donovan, another fish packer in town operates a pickled and smoked fish plant on Hall's Island. The buildings comprise three fish houses and one dwelling house. The capacity of the smoked fish buildings is about 50,000 boxes, annually.

Sidney E. Doyle is one of the town's enterprising fish dealers. Mr. Doyle came to this town in the fall of 1904, from Corea, Maine, where for many years he had been engaged in the handling of fish. On April 12, 1905, he occupied his present fish stand, built by Charles Mansfield on Old House Point. This plant will handle salt and pickled fish of various kinds. The buildings comprise a two-story house, 100 x 30, with sheds. The capacity is about 400 hogsheads of fish and 500 hogsheads of salt. Connected with this building is a wharf privilege of 3500 square feet.

John A. Beal, owns and operates a large smoked and pickled fish plant, located on Beal's Island. The plant comprises two modern smoke houses with a capacity of 60,000 boxes, with a salt pickling building, within which from 500 to 1000 barrels are thus prepared for market annually.

Charles H. Beal carries on an extensive fish business in his plant, situated on Beal's Island. The business consists of handling salt fish and pickled herring. Mr. Beal handles about $10,000 worth of the former, and $5000 of the latter each year when the plant is operated to its full capacity. The valuation of the property is about $1500.

J. F. Beal is another one of the town's fish packers living on Beal's Island. His pickled and smoked fish plant is situated on the island near his residence. The buildings consist of a smoked fish house, salt house, stringing shed and boxing building. About 28,000 boxes of herring are annually prepared.

Joseph A. Beal owns and operates a smoked fish plant on Calf Island. This business was begun some three years since at this place by Mr. Beal. The valuation of the property is about $700. Approximately 12,000 boxes of herring are prepared each year.

Warren E. Beal, J. M. Wallace and Levi Wallace, known as the Beal & Wallace Fish Company, have a large smoked fish plant on the northeast part of Great Wass Island. This is a modern plant and is valued at about $1,000. It was built some five years ago, and about 20,000 boxes of herring are annually prepared.

Thomas W. and N. N. Beal have a smoked fish factory, situated at West Jonesport. The valuation of this property is about $500, and about 10,000 boxes is its annual capacity.

GRANITE QUARRIES

Within the limits of the town of Jonesport are three granite quarrying concerns. These are the New England Granite Company, Metropolitan Granite Company, and Rockport Granite Company.

The New England Granite Company, situated on Head Harbor Island, is the outgrowth of the operations begun in 1891, by the Cape Ann Granite Company, who secured the quarry from L. K. Wass and D. S. Andrews. The first operators erected sheds and a boarding house, and equipped the plant with modern machinery. For a few years, this concern carried on quite an extensive business. In June, 1903, this plant was sold to the above syndicate. D. S. Andrews acts as its general manager.

The Metropolitan Granite Company, operates a stone quarry, situated on Head Harbor Island. This plant was sold to this firm in 1902, by Oris Vose of Machias, who had secured this site in 1891, of Jackson Alley. This granite concern is carrying on quite an extensive stone business, and at the present time, have a large contract for an armory in Pennsylvania. Approximately, fifty hands are employed. Frank Wallace is general manager.

The Rockport Granite Company is situated on Hard Wood Island and is owned by Boston and Gloucester parties. This quarry was owned by the Cape Ann Granite Company, which sold to the above parties in 1884. Charles A. Rogers, of Rockport, Massachusetts, is its general manager. This quarry is operated only during the summer months.

FACTS OF INTEREST

THE PALESTINE COLONY.

The story of the Palestine Emigration Colony is ever interesting to the Jonesport reader because of the thirty-six men and women from this town, who made that memorable visit. Space will permit us to give but a brief account of this event.

Elder J. D. Adams of Pennsylvania had for a number of years entertained the idea of establishing a Church of the Messiah at Palestine, hoping thus to bring about the restoration to Christendom of the Holy Land. After two years of work, he formed what was known as the Palestine Emigration Colony. With one hundred and fifty-six persons, Mr. Adams made all preparations to settle a colony in the Chosen Land.

It was on the 11th of August, 1866, that the bark, Nellie Chapen, left the steamboat wharf at West Jonesport, bearing Mr. Adams and his Colony, and bound for Palestine, the Land of Promise. The voyage to that country was made in forty-two days, without any unpleasant or remarkable happenings, and at last, all hands were landed safely on the shore near the city of Jaffa.

The colony succeeded in obtaining a beautiful location for their future habitation, surrounded by a grove of oranges. They proceeded to erect tents, unload their ships, and raft their lumber ashore. To obtain good drinking water they solicited the aid of the American Consul. Within a few days after landing, some members of the Colony were taken sick and died. An investigation proved that the natives were bringing them water from anywhere they could get it, when the colony had made provision for getting their supply from the city fountain. The members immediately hired an interpreter, whom they retained for his valuable services.

When the lumber was safely landed on the site of their prospective village, the colony had no one to act as leader in constructing the buildings; for their contractor and builder was one who had died from drinking the poisonous water. Not discouraged, however, the men went ahead and the houses were rapidly and decently constructed. The buildings were made two-story with flat roofs, except one, the Drisko's, which was three story and designed for a hotel. A church was erected as soon as their homes were built. The next step taken was the opening of a school for their children.

That a vegetable supply might be laid in store, the colony then turned their attention toward the tilling of the soil. They planted their garden lots near their buildings, and their wheat patch, which lay two miles distant. The latter crop was almost a failure; for the Arabs, who would steal everything they could get, cut the crop when half grown and brought it to market where they sold it for the horses. Thereafter one of the colony was stationed on sentinel duty at this spot during the day. There was no danger from them at night, for their superstitious beliefs, made them too cowardly to venture out of doors at that time.

Thus this Colony started their settlement with but petty annoying hinderances and might have been a success, but for the lack of confidence that its members were soon forced to hold towards their leader, Mr. Adams. It appears that he imbibed too freely of the intoxicating cup, which was always offered one when making a visit. In fact it was a sign that your presence was not wanted if this was not done. The colony after remaining one year in their cosy settlement, decided to disband. During these months a few had died, and four children were born. Mr. Alton Rogers, a citizen of Jonesport, was one of this number who has the distinction of having been born in the Holy Land.

When the colony disbanded, some of their number came directly home, while others remained and passed several months in visiting places throughout the Holy Land. Then, to, on their way home some visited the World's Fair at Paris, France. The last of the colony except a few who never returned, reached home about fourteen months after their departure.

As a whole this colony may not be termed a failure; for its endeavors have proved the starting forth of other similar expeditions, who have made a success of their efforts. We feel safe in saying that very few persons who made this voyage and reached home safely, with their relatives, have regretted their experience.

PUBLIC LIBRARY

Read good books first, for you will not get a chance to read them all, is the motto of this institution, wherever it is found. It was with this thought in mind, that the people of Jonesport met on Sept. 9, 1893, in the Congregational vestry, for the purpose of establishing such an institution. At this first meeting, a committee of five was chosen to solicit members at a fee of one dollar, payable annually. Five days later, Sept. 14, the society met and elected the following officers: Rev. E. S. Ireland, president; Mrs. Geo. F. Mansfield, vice-president; Miss Lena Rumery, secretary; and Mrs. E. R. Peasley, treasurer. At this meeting, 99 members were reported. At the next meeting, Miss Rumery resigned as secretary and Mrs. E. B. Sawyer was chosen to fill the vacancy, which position Mrs. Sawyer has held ever since. At the end of this year (1893) the society had 118 members. They had expended $103.03 for furnishing a library hall; $51.74 for papers and periodicals; and $127.80 for books. The librarian that year was Fred Smith.

In the intervening years, from 1894 to 1900, this institution made a marked advancement. Contributions of books and money were received. In 1894, 100 valuable volumes were received, as a gift from Joseph Smith, of Andover, Massachusetts; Capt. Goldthwait, of Biddeford Pool; and Mrs. Coburn, of Boston. In 1895, the society began to consider the question of a library building, and a gift of $50 was made by Colonel Oliver Peabody, of Boston, for this same purpose. In 1897, the town voted the library $50, and this same year, Geo. A. Gardner gave the society a subscription of $200. A gift of 25 books was also received from Mrs. Oliver Peabody, and $25 from Lyman Underwood of Belmont, Massachusetts.

In 1900, Dec. 20, the society voted, that the Library Association make the town a gift of the books and magazines belonging to the Association, the same to be made a Free Public Library and a certain sum appropriated annually for its support. A committee of four were chosen to visit the selectmen and consult them on the matter. At a special town meeting held at the Jonesport Opera House, the town accepted the Association's offer, rendering the institution a free public library. This movement was made by its members, that the library might receive aid from both town and State.

From 1900 to the present time, the public library has been under the supervision of a board of trustees, appointed by the town. A neat and commodious building is rented for its use. At the present time, the library has 1,007 well-selected volumes. Mrs. D. D. Kelley is librarian. This institution is still aided by the former association, which, in 1903, was formed into the Jonesport Library and Reading Association. It is, in the near future, to erect a new library building, and has already secured a goodly sum for that purpose.

VILLAGE IMPROVEMENT SOCIETIES

The three Improvement Societies formed in Jonesport Lower Village, West Jonesport and Kelley's District, have done much towards establishing certain needed improvements.

The Lower Village Society was organized in 1883, as the Young Ladies' Bell Society. Its object was to purchase a bell for the present Primary and Intermediate school houses in District No. 3. This was done at an approximate cost of $150. From the bell, the society turned its attention to a town clock, which was placed in the Congregational church, at a cost of about $325. This was done by this society soliciting subscriptions. Next, this organization turned its attention towards sidewalks, with the result which is appreciated by every pedestrian in this village. Approximately, $900 has been expended in this work.

The Bell Society of West Jonesport, was organized about the same time as the one at the Lower Village, and for the same purpose, the bell secured costing $124. The society next made extended repairs on the village vestry. This organization was followed by a Cemetery society, which built the fence around the burial grounds, and made further improvements. This finally developed in a sidewalk society. Between eight and nine hundred dollars have been expended for this purpose. At the present time this organization is building a sidewalk around what is called the "square" at West Jonesport.

At an early date, the ladies in what is known as the Kelley District, organized a society for the purpose of building sidewalks, and erecting a hall for social gatherings. The result of their labor is the present neat and tidy two-story building and the wooden sidewalks in the hamlet.

Census-1905

The population of the Town of Jonesport has been arranged in families where that arrangement has been possible. In these families, in addition to the resident living members, the names of the non-resident members are included. It should be borne in mind that this plan does not include the names of all former residents of this town, as the names of the non-residents appear only when one or both of the parents are still living in the town. After the name of each non-resident will be found the present address, when such address has been given to us. Non-residents are indicated by the (*).

When a daughter in a family has married, her name taken in marriage appears after her given name in parenthesis, the name preceded by a small m, thus: (m).

Following the names of the population is the occupations. To designate these we have used the more common abbreviations and contractions, as follows: Farmer—far; carpenter—car; railroad service—R R ser; student, a member of an advanced institution of learning—stu; pupil, a member of a lower grade of schools (including all who have reached the age of five years)—pl; housework—ho; laborer—lab; physician and surgeon—phy & sur; clergyman—clerg; merchant—mer; teacher—tr; blacksmith—blk; clerk—cl; bookkeeper—bk kpr; lawyer—law; mechanic—mech; machinist—mach; engineer—eng; maker—mkr; worker—wkr; work—wk; shoe shop work—shoe op; cotton or woolen mill operatives—mill op; weaver—weav; spinner—spin; electrician—elec; painter—ptr; carriage work—car wk; dress maker—dr mkr; insurance—ins; traveling salesman, or commercial traveler—sales, or coml trav; music teacher—mus tr; teamster—team; general work—genl wk; mariner—mar; employ—emp; retired ret.

This Census was taken expressly for this work during the spring of 1905, by E. M. Campbell, Kent's Hill, Me.
